New Developments

Obituary Submission Page is now available on our website!

We are excited to announce a significant enhancement to our website – the addition of an Obituary Submission Page! We understand the importance of commemorating the lives of our loved ones, and we are committed to providing a seamless and respectful platform for you to share their stories.

With the new Obituary Submission Page, you can now easily submit and publish obituaries for your dear ones directly on our website. This feature aims to simplify the process, allowing you to honor and celebrate the lives of those who have left us.

Why Choose Green Burial?

Green burial is a simple and environmentally sustainable way to honor your loved one's wishes. While new in many ways, green burial is aligned with our most ancient rites and traditions. It respects a desire to return to nature after passing and allows your loved one to be laid to rest without the use of chemicals. As you move through this deeply personal journey, know that green burial never limits the ways you can honor a life and leave a legacy. It only opens up possibilities.

Opting for a green burial not only aligns with environmentally conscious choices but can also be a more cost-effective alternative to traditional burials. Grave plots for green burials are often in natural settings, eliminating the need for pricey headstones and perpetual care fees associated with conventional cemeteries. Choosing a green burial can thus be a financially sensible decision, with savings up to 66%.

Featured Insect:

Bee

Morgan Oaks is a habitat to many insects, including the Bee.

- Busy Workers: Bees are incredibly industrious insects. A single worker bee can visit up to 5,000 flowers in a single day, collecting nectar and pollen.
- Dances of Communication: Honeybees communicate through intricate dances. The famous "waggle dance" helps them convey information about the location of food sources to other members of the hive.
- Remarkable Memory: Bees have an impressive memory for facial recognition. They can recognize human faces and remember them for a long time.
- Life Span Variations: The life span of a bee varies depending on its role. Worker bees typically live for a few weeks, drones for a few months, while the queen can live for several years.
- Seasonal Strategies: In colder climates, honeybees survive the winter by clustering together to generate heat. They form a tight ball with the queen at the center, rotating from the colder outer layer to the warmer inner layer.
